Showcasing Malta at Harrods

During the month of March, the Maltese islands were being extensively promoted in one of the world’s most renowned department stores, Harrods in London. The ambitious promotion, titled 'This Is Malta', is the initiative of Malta's High Commissioner in the UK, Joseph Zammit Tabona, and was taken up by three Maltese government agencies: Malta Enterprise, the Malta Tourism Authority and FinanceMalta. The three entities have jointly co-ordinated the Harrods promotion.

The campaign covered diverse areas of the store. It consisted of an impressive display in the windows overlooking Brompton Road which included national artefacts provided by Heritage Malta, Maltese silver, ceramic pieces by Alka Ceramics and glass creations by Mdina Glass—which also held an extensive exhibition on a dedicated floor. A number of flags of Malta embellished the façade of the store. A contemporary painting exhibition of Maltese artists was displayed in the foyer of the elegant Georgian Restaurant while imagery of the Maltese Islands was on show in various showcases and screens throughout the store. The store’s display windows and screens were all variously themed, promoting diverse aspects of the Maltese islands, especially with regards to history and culture, tourism, business and industry as well as financial services. The display screens throughout the store aired a number of sponsored and/or promotional clips of Malta and Gozo.

Furthermore, the Harrods Store Guide for the month of March also carried full-page advertisements of Malta-based companies and banks, whilst the Harrods magazine March issue, included a 16 page feature on Malta and Gozo with a foreword by Prime Minister Dr Lawrence Gonzi. All receipts printed at the tills during this period had full-colour adverts on the back, promoting Gozo as a destination in its own right and the investment opportunities inherent there.

Since this event also coincided with the 70th anniversary of the awarding of the George Cross to the Maltese Island, a replica of the George Cross medal has been put up on display. Another 13 paintings donated by artist Kenneth Zammit Tabona for the Duke of Edinburgh Award were on display and on sale.

A number of Maltese businesses, banks and other entities took the opportunity to organize networking and informative meetings at Harrods during March.

The support of a number of other entities was also instrumental in the organisation of this event namely Air Malta Plc, The Ministry of Gozo, Malta International Airport plc, HSBC Bank Malta plc, Bank of Valletta plc, Corinthia Group, Hilton Malta, The Xara Palace Relais & Châteaux, Mdina Glass, Grand Harbour Marina plc and the Malta Experience.
Fundraising for The Duke of Edinburgh Award

On 28 March 2012, the High Commissioner Joseph Zammit Tabona hosted a fundraising reception for The Duke of Edinburgh’s Award International Association and The President’s Award – as the Award is referred to in Malta. This reception was held at the Official Residence of Malta in London.

The guest of honour was His Royal Highness The Earl of Wessex, in his capacity as Chairman of the Award’s International Council. HRH The Earl of Wessex will be visiting Malta once again in November this year to chair the triennial 2012 worldwide conference which will be a turning point for the Award. HRH The Earl of Wessex has taken a special interest in the Malta meeting and this, coupled with support received from the Government of Malta, amongst others, promises to make Forum 2012 the most successful to date.

The High Commissioner said he decided to hold this fundraising event ‘to encourage donors to contribute to such a worthy charity which supports young people to develop into responsible, active citizens who in turn contribute towards society’. Furthermore he remarked with pleasure, ‘I believe it is a first for a member of the Royal Family to honour us with their presence at Malta’s official residence in London’.

After the reception, HRH The Earl of Wessex was also the guest of honour at a private dinner at The Residence, also hosted by the High Commissioner and Mrs Zammit Tabona. The other guests included potential donors as well as the top personalities at The President’s Award, the Organising Committee of the Malta Forum, as well as former Award Participants.

The Malta Film Commission, as part of its programme of initiatives to market Malta as a unique and dynamic film location, was in the UK holding a series of information sessions with a number of film production companies. These sessions were hosted at the world famous Harrods Department Store, as part of the “This is Malta” showcase being organised by the Malta High Commission and coordinated by Malta Enterprise, the Malta Tourism Authority and Finance Malta - to promote Malta’s entrepreneurial and business opportunities and strengthen already well-established relations between Malta and the United Kingdom.

During this visit, the Malta Film Commissioner Mr Peter Busuttil hosted a series of information sessions "Filming in Malta: One location fits all", for producers and production houses looking for different locations and attractive financial incentives for future productions which could be shot in Malta. He was also invited to meet with the members of The Production Guild at the De Lane Lea Studios; and over the three days had a series of one to one meetings at the Corinthia Hotel, London.

In these sessions, Mr Busuttil talked about the portfolio of movies shot in Malta over the last few years. He highlighted Malta’s developed infrastructure, the wide range of quality film related services, skilled talent and crew, unique water tank facilities and advantageous financial incentives. In his presentations, he explained the assistance that companies may expect to receive from the Commission and demonstrated how production houses that decide to film in Malta can benefit by receiving back up to 22% of their eligible spend.

He stressed the fact that the Commission’s role is to assist production companies during the early stages of their production development and help them formulate their requests in line with the Malta’s Film Industry Incentives.

The High Commissioner of Malta, Joseph Zammit Tabona was present during one of the information sessions and took the opportunity to speak personally to a number of production companies present. In his address, he highlighted Malta’s wealth in culture, heritage, locations and talent, which make our island such an attractive proposition. He spoke of the fact that although Malta is small there is a big ‘can-do’ attitude, where everyone is accessible and works towards ensuring that the production is a success.

Malta’s Lotteries and Gaming Authority (LGA) participated in this year’s International Gaming Exhibition (ICE Totally Gaming) which was held between 23-26 January, at Earl’s Court, London.

For the ninth consecutive year, the LGA, together with other Maltese gaming service providers and licensed operators, exhibited and participated in the world’s premier international gaming expo for gaming professionals.

As in previous years, Malta’s presence was significant, with approximately 50% of the exhibited stands in the remote gaming area being occupied by Maltese or Maltese related companies.

A delegation from the Lotteries and Gaming Authority met operators and service providers and assisted them by providing relevant information about the remote gaming regulatory framework in Malta. Furthermore Malta Enterprise - through the branding of tINC Malta - was also present to provide overview information with respect to Malta’s business environment. Commenting on the outcome of the exhibition, an LGA spokesperson said that “the outcome was extremely positive and beyond our expectations. The LGA’s stand was one of the busiest, whilst in parallel a series of meetings with gaming regulators from across the globe were held with LGA top officials throughout the expo. The huge influx of visitors to the LGA stand reconfirms the vibrant interest in Malta, which already licenses over 290 operators holding 438 licenses.”

When visiting the exhibition, High Commissioner of Malta in the UK, HE Joseph Zammit Tabona remarked on Malta’s outstanding success in the remote gaming industry on an international level - adding that Malta has become the leading i-gaming jurisdiction in Europe.
Prime Minister Gonzi also met with Foreign Secretary William Hague at his official residence in Carlton Gardens. At these talks, the agenda followed on the issues discussed at Downing Street but also focused on the EU, particularly the Economic, Financial and Social Policy Dossiers.

DOUBLE TAXATION AGREEMENT

Malta signs its 60th - with Guernsey

On 12 March 2012, the Government of Malta and the Government of Guernsey, signed an Agreement for the avoidance of double taxation and the prevention of fiscal evasion with respect to taxes on income. The High Commissioner of Malta in the UK, HE Mr Joseph Zammit Tabona signed on behalf of the Government of Malta and the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs Dr Tonio Borg remarked that this agreement - being the 60th signed in the past couple of years - is a concrete example of the efforts undertaken by the Government of Malta to attract foreign direct investment.

Lyndon Trott signed on behalf of the Government of the States of Guernsey. The signing ceremony took place at the Malta High Commission, London.

Chief Minister Trott expressed his delight to sign such an important bilateral agreement and together with High Commissioner Zammit Tabona pledged their support with the implementation of this Agreement for the avoidance of double taxation and the prevention of fiscal evasion with respect to taxes on income.

TAX INFORMATION EXCHANGE AGREEMENT

Malta and Gibraltar

On 24 January 2012, Malta and Gibraltar signed a Tax Information Exchange Agreement (TIEA) - which provides for a full exchange of information on tax matters.

The High Commissioner of Malta HE Joseph Zammit Tabona signed on behalf of the Government of Malta and Gibraltar’s Minister with responsibility for Financial Services, Gilbert Licudi, signed on behalf of the Government of Gibraltar. The signing ceremony took place at the Malta High Commission, London.

High Commissioner Zammit Tabona said: “It is my pleasure to sign this Agreement with Gibraltar - which reinforces links and strengthens bilateral relations, particularly in the fields of financial services and business”. He added: “the signing of TIEAs demonstrates good practice in the global financial sector.”

Both signatories confirmed the agreement included all standard means to ensure due process was followed in tax information requests, including, for example, provisions to protect confidentiality of information. The TIEA will also adhere to public policy considerations and provisions related to protecting legal privilege.

Both signatories are also members of the OECD Global Forum on Transparency and Exchange of Information.
The Commonwealth Journalists Association visits Malta

The Commonwealth Journalists Association (CJA) brought together an array of international journalists and Commonwealth experts to Malta from 29 January till 1 February for the CJA’s triennial conference at Radisson Blu Resort, St. Julian’s.

High Commissioner Zammit Tabona invited those journalists who travelled to Malta as part of the delegation, to the Malta High Commission in Piccadilly, for a pre-visit reception on 18 January 2012.

The CJA conference heard presentations from senior members of the Commonwealth Secretariat and Canada’s envoy to the Commonwealth, Senator Hugh Segal, on the future of the Commonwealth. Senator Segal was a member of the Eminent Persons Group that presented its controversial report at the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting late last year in Perth, Australia.

Other participants included Dr Michael Frendo, Speaker of the House of Representatives, leading journalists and civil rights representatives from Sri Lanka, Pakistan, Bangladesh and sub-Saharan Africa.

A panel examining the fallout of the Murdoch newspaper phone tapping scandal was made up of former UK Solicitor General Vera Baird, prominent Indian journalist Sunanda Datta-Ray, William Horsley of the Centre for Freedom of the Media and others.

The conference was opened by the Minister of Tourism, Culture and the Environment of Malta, the Hon. Mario de Marco.

Meeting of the British All-Party Parliamentary Group on Malta

On 1 February 2012, the British All-Party Parliamentary Group (APPG) on Malta met at the Corinthia, London. This meeting was hosted by the High Commissioner of Malta, Joseph Zammit Tabona. The Group was being led by Malta APPG Chairman Mark Pritchard. The Guest of Honour for this meeting was the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Michael Frendo, accompanied by Diplomatic Counsellor to the Speaker, Gaetan Naudi.

The reconstitution of this group, the High Commissioner said, comes at a time when relations between Malta and the UK are at an all-time high. The High Commissioner assured the members of the Malta APPG that his High Commission is very committed to facilitating any contact between the two Parliaments and any exchanges that might result out of this liaising.

Chairman Mark Pritchard remarked that the Malta APPG generated a lot of interest within parliamentary circles. In fact, the experience of other APPGs in the British Parliament was not so encouraging. He said that the growing numbers of MPs who are subscribing to the Malta Group presents the Group’s Chairman with a challenge to make sure it works.

The Speaker invited Chairman Mark Pritchard to lead a delegation from this APPG to visit Malta in the near future, as guests of the Parliament of Malta. This is a clear example of how many benefits can be achieved through such Parliamentary Friendship Groups and ultimately bilateral relations are further enhanced.

Malta Business Network update

On Thursday 26 January, the Malta Business Network met for the first time since the Rules of Association were ratified by the members and a committee was appointed in December 2011.

A number of initiatives for 2012 were announced, all with the aim to maximise networking amongst Maltese and UK business persons. The Committee decided to host receptions at the Malta High Commission every last Tuesday of the month and subsequent meetings were therefore held on the 28 February and 27 March. The next meeting is scheduled to be held on 24 April.

With pleasure, the High Commissioner noted a significant increase in membership and attendance over the past couple of months. “This”, he said, “can only be interpreted as very encouraging and reflects the immediate success the Malta Business Network has been enjoying, considering it has been set up for less than a year”.

The MBN website has been launched. For further information, please refer to www.maltabusinessnetwork.com

Former High Commissioner Francis Cassar Obituary
by Adrian Cassar

Article as appeared in The Guardian on Sunday 26 February 2012

My father, Francis Cassar, who has died aged 77, left Malta for England at the age of 18 and carved a career in business and diplomacy. The second world war siege of Malta and its aftermath had left him with few formal qualifications, but he found success in London while remaining permanently affiliated to his mother island.

Francis first worked as a chef at the Grosvenor House hotel and at Quaglino’s restaurant. With the capital he accumulated, he secured a motorcycle business in Whitton, Twickenham, which he ran for 15 years until 1974. Maintaining a strong political identity with the Malta Labour party, he was its representative in London for many years, including the most testing of times during negotiations between UK and Malta over military bases and rents in 1971. As the UK’s relationship with Malta was re-established, Francis moved into an office environment, initially at the London office of Malta Drydocks and later with the Malta Development Corporation, travelling widely in north Africa and the Middle East.

These posts provided the platform that was to prepare Francis for his service as high commissioner for Malta (1981-87). In many ways he was the perfect choice, an individual who had studied the British political scene at close hand, supported by a British wife.

Francis left Malta government service in 1990, after a tour in Baghdad during the Iran-Iraq war. After his departure from office, he could still be found at national occasions which commemorate the enduring relationship between the UK and Malta, such as the now annual ceremony on Tower Hill in memory of those lost in Operation Pedestal in 1942. His personal knowledge of the importance of this operation, which was instrumental in lifting the siege of Malta, made those occasions all the more poignant.

Francis was a justice of the peace from 1973 until his retirement in 2004, most recently leading the bench in Tottenham. He also worked with the Carr-Gomm Society in housing disadvantaged and mentally ill people, particularly around Brentford. He was a person who was satisfied with the smallest pleasures, for the most part in the service of others.

Francis’s first wife, my mother, Anne, died in 1971. He is survived by his second wife, Doreen, their son Simon, and two grandsons.
